Abstract: This paper examines the impact of the 1997-1998 Asian financial crisis on the performance of the Korean stock market. The results show that the Korean stock market experienced a significant decline in performance during the crisis period, which was attributed to a combination of factors, including a sharp increase in the risk premium, a decrease in the market's liquidity, and a loss of confidence in the Korean government's ability to manage the crisis. The paper also discusses the implications of these findings for the development of the Korean stock market and the role of the government in stabilizing the market during periods of financial crisis.
